

Rauch Associates

Market Research Analyst Consulting Position

JOB TITLE

Senior Market Research Analyst to conduct primary competitive intelligence research based on company assigned projects. Rauch research analysts work from their home offices on either a full-time or part-time basis, depending on their overall availability.

KEY BENEFITS

Rauch Market Research Analyst consultants enjoy the following benefits:

- Virtual Environment – Rauch Associates operates a virtual office environment - all analyst work can be performed from a home office or any virtual office around the world
- Flexible Work Hours – Analysts are assigned mutually agreed upon work assignments with a corresponding completion time. Analysts are free to set their own work hours (generally within a typical business day time zone) subject to being able to complete agreed upon work assignments
- Paid Training – Rauch Associates offers paid certification training to qualified consultants on Rauch research methods and techniques. Once certified, independent consultants are placed on the Rauch resource list and offered consulting assignments on an ongoing basis
- Ability-Based Compensation – Compensation is based on the assigned value of all research project work completed. Typical annual compensation ranges from $50K - $100K on a self-employed basis, depending on Analyst availability and throughput skills
- Retention Bonuses – Valued at up to 10% of annual earnings, these retention bonuses are available to top Analysts

JOB DESCRIPTION

Rauch Market Research Analyst consultants are required to have excellent interview, analytical, and communications skills, as well as the ability to consistently deliver high quality research and analysis, honesty and confidentiality.

Responsibilities:

- Conduct pre-sales type interviews with sales, marketing, and technical personnel at industry competitors to assess competitor business practices
- Analyze, organize, and correlate information from interviews, Email exchanges, and independent sources (e.g. Internet, trade articles, company literature, etc.)
- Write final, customer-ready market research reports based on information supplied in interviews, company web sites, and product and company literature
- Manage activities of Market Research Project Assistant(s) assigned to provide background information and support for Research Analyst activities

Requirements:

- 5-10 years' experience in market research, investigative reporting, technology sales, or high-level product marketing
- BS/BA degree or equivalent experience, MBA or Masters a plus
- A second language (French / German / Italian / Spanish) advantageous but not essential
- Must be able to engage in a mystery shopping pre-sales cycle in order to conduct specific, custom interviews with key sales, marketing or technical personnel of target competitors
- Strong communications and research, marketing, and investigative or sales interview background
- Possess excellent written/verbal communication, presentation and project management skills
- Excellent time-management skills
- Proficiency with Microsoft Word, PowerPoint and Excel

ABOUT RAUCH ASSOCIATES

Founded in 1994, Rauch Associates is a Silicon Valley research firm specializing in gathering competitive intelligence information in sophisticated B2B environments. Our global clients include some of industry's leading technology (systems, software, web, networking, telecom, etc.), manufacturing, retail, health, finance, and insurance companies. For more information, see the company web site at www.rauchassociates.com